Readings: 33rd Sunday in Ordinary Time (A)

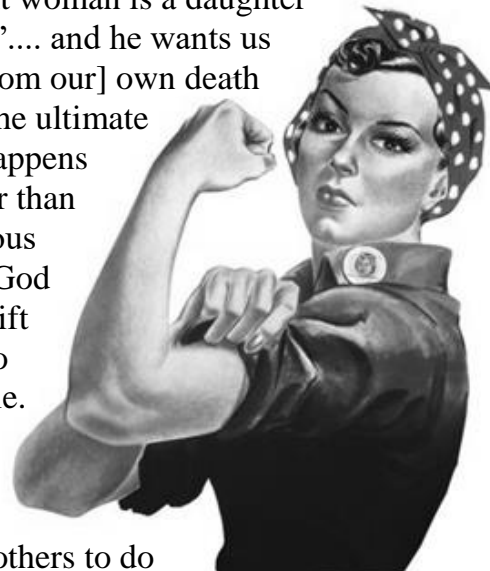

1 st Reading	2 nd Reading	Gospel
Proverbs 31: 10...31	1 Thessalonians 5: 1-6	Matthew 25: 14-30

USING OUR TALENTS... (Women included, of course!)

The three readings this week prepare us for the end of the year and challenge us to understand our life in terms of its ultimate purpose. We have all been given talents and time. Let's not bury them by watching the clock. One talent is estimated to be worth something like a million dollars in today's money, but demonstrating honest service need not be as dramatic as the task of managing millions.

Today's reading from Proverbs presents an ancient description of a model servant of God... a model we can imitate: a simple, honorable woman of industry and character... She simply fulfills the human vocation, transforming nature's bounty into goods for both her family and the poor for whom she cares as her own. Her life and her works speak for her, encouraging those who know her to follow her example...

St Paul would say that valiant woman is a daughter of the day, a woman "awake"... and he wants us to reorient our concerns – [from our] own death or the end of the world – to the ultimate purpose of our lives. What happens when we identify love [rather than money] as God's most precious gift entrusted to each of us? God fills us to capacity with the gift of love, then sends us forth to invest it in every way possible. Rather than seek our own personal fortune, we multiply love by investing it in the community, inspiring others to do the same.
