Resurrection Happens When Love Transforms Life

We who know and believe Jesus risen are to offer that same experience to others.... [But] we are, at times, Absent Thomases... when we are not conscientious about enriching our faith and appreciating the rich traditions of our Church. To follow the lead of those earliest believers in the great work of evangelization, our religious formation must not end in grade or high school; rather it must be a continuous, cradle-to-the-grave process....

Because of Jesus, Luke tells us in Acts, the believers were of one heart and mind. They shared all they had; there was no need to which they did not tend.... From Paul's letters, we learn that the early community's sense of mutual responsibility extended beyond the local church. Collections were taken up and sent to needier groups. We read... that every child of God is loved by God and is to be loved by those who believe in God's Son... Who, then, would possibly be outside of God's love, and therefore outside of our love and care? No one. What greater inclusion could there be? As members of the risen Christ, how can we practice such divine inclusion in our time? [Ask] who are the ones who are vulnerable and excluded today: some because of their race, land of origin, or culture; some because of their gender, lifestyle or politics; or because they are homeless, disabled, unemployed or otherwise marginalized. Do we ignore the call of the suffering and risen Christ by excluding people or standing by while others exclude any of God's children? For us, the baptized, that cannot be! ...God's love is unconditional. That is the divine inclusion in which we rejoice, and that we extend to every person as we are sent forth in the power of the Holy Spirit....

Resurrection happens whenever love transforms life: when someone offers forgiveness despite a burning desire for vengeance; when a nation begins to value and protect the rights of all...; when the poor, hungry, homeless and disenfranchised are attended to as brothers and sisters; when immigrants and refugees are... welcomed as the children of God. Resurrection happens when enemies sit down together to talk instead of planning the other's demise (Ralph Kuehner & Joseph Juknialis, Living the Word, 2005). Resurrection is happening all around us; let us venture out of our locked doors and celebrate. Jesus, our Lord and our God, lives!..
