Better to Enter Life Maimed

(Mark 9: 43)

How much we make of 'wellness,' 'health' and 'wholeness';
 The ideal body, the unblemished form,
 How deeply we despise and hide our weakness
 And worship all the world thinks strong and firm.
 And how each facile photoshopped appearance
 Haunts and accuses children as they grow
 Until they pine for their own disappearance
 And waste away and never tell their woe.

But you have never fallen for this idol,
 You 'had no form or beauty', hurt and shamed,
 A stumbling block, a mockery, a scandal,
 You lived with the rejected and the maimed.
 Don't count me with the strong and tanned and thin,
 Count me with the maimed, but count me in.

— Rev Malcolm Guite (Chaplain, Girton College, Cambridge)
