REFLECTION

MEDITATION ON TRINITY

The word "Trinity," referring to three distinct "persons" in one Godhead is not explicitly spelled out in either the Old Testament or the New, although there are many references in the latter that can be used as a basis for the concept. Rather, the early Church arrived at the doctrine of the Trinity when she reflected on revelation she had received from Jesus in Faith. The oldest doctrinal formulation of the Trinitarian nature of God is found in the Apostles' Creed, which has served as the Baptismal confession of Faith since the 2nd Century. Later, the Council of Nicaea established the doctrine more explicitly in the Nicene Creed, promulgated in 325AD. This creed was introduced into our Western liturgy by the regional council of Toledo in AD 589.

Some confusion is still caused by the word "person," which assuredly was not meant to imply the legal concept of a natural human organism, as we now understand the word. The Latin word persona probably comes from the theatre, where it meant a mask, a character, or a role. Even within one performance, the same actor could play several different roles, each with its own character attributes. Peeling back the onion, this word persona could have originated with the Latin verb per-sonare, literally to sound through, which would be appropriate for a character speaking through a theatrical mask.
