REFLECTION

How Not to Be Thanked

“Who among you would say to your slave who has just come in from plowing or tending sheep in the field, ‘Come here at once and take your place at the table’? Would you not rather say to him, ‘Prepare supper for me, put on your apron and serve me while I eat and drink; later you may eat and drink’? Do you thank the slave for doing what was commanded? So you also, when you have done all that you were ordered to do, say, ‘We are worthless slaves; we have done only what we ought to have done!’” (Luke 17: 5-10)

We did these servant duties the feedings and healings and knitting and praying the giving and cooking and fixing and cleaning and then we tied these obligatory faith tasks to neoprene white weather balloons hydrogen-filled launched them into the stratosphere and beyond to see where the ghostly wind might take them soaring over cities and oceans and stadiums and slums we let them go from our slavish egos to become part of the seasons and the cycles and the ways of the global organism so they were no longer us or part of us and no longer tied to our oxygen-weighted lungs and brains and blood we imagined they might rise up to God and burst from glory and fall back to earth and shower the love-dry human fields with drips of kindness and drops of compassion and our entire selves might rise and burst and praise
