The Third Yes

A man had two sons; he went to the first and said, 'Son, go and work in the vineyard today.' He answered, 'I will not'; but later changed his mind and went. The father went to the second and said the same, and he answered, 'I go, sir'; but he did not go.

Which of the two did the will of his father? (Matt 21)

My first yes was eager and earnest and ill-thought it was spirited and bouncing and saw the whole world like a Chicago snow globe I could shake into beauty but I shook nothing and made no magnificence here

My second yes was my ego in search of positioning and a title and a moment on the dais under lights so everything I signed up for ended dissonant and cracked and unfinished like a garage hobby

And then came my honest, exhausted, deflated no and I merely made my bed and tipped the barista held the door for the guy with the baby stroller answered the phone with a helpful thought or two

And then as I held onto no and not me and not now you uttered the unexpected yes into this slight life of saving no one and fixing little and mostly walking with arms and eyes open to the next and tiniest of faithful things
